As the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, I am pleased to present this illustrative accounting of my public activities of the past fiscal year.

During more than 770 engagements throughout Ontario, I have been fortunate that thousands of Ontarians have shared with me stories of their successes, hopes, and challenges. These stories are inspirational yet all too often remain untold. The voices and visions of Ontarians deserve to be shared, and my humble ambition is to be your Storyteller-in-Chief.

Taken together, these stories say something quite profound about who we are. They articulate the importance of place, and they contemplate what we owe to our roots and how we aspire to transcend our current circumstances. They reveal our generosity and our desire to help others in this world while speaking of the ongoing work that is required at home to build more just and sustainable communities. They remind us of our obligations and opportunities as citizens of Canada and the world and of our responsibility to serve as stewards of the resources we have inherited.

The year 2017 marks the 150th anniversary of Confederation, and is a moment for all Canadians to engage in genuine dialogue about who we are, and wish to be, as a people. I am extraordinarily proud of the contributions that Ontarians, in going about their ordinary lives in extraordinary ways, have made to our understanding of what it means to be Canadian. I greatly look forward to what you will continue to contribute to our national story.

I hope that this report will provide insight into how blessed we are to live in such a special place.

Biography

The Honourable Elizabeth Dowdeswell was invested as Ontario's 29th Lieutenant Governor on September 23, 2014. Her eclectic public service career has spanned provincial, federal, and international borders, and has transcended disciplinary and sectoral lines.

Ms. Dowdeswell began her professional career as a teacher and university lecturer. After serving as the Deputy Minister of Culture and Youth for the Government of Saskatchewan, she held increasingly senior positions in the Canadian public service, most notably as head of the Atmospheric Environment Service. Throughout this period, she managed several public inquiries and royal commissions.

Her international negotiating experiences prefaced her election in 1992 as Executive Director of the United Nations Environment Programme and Under-Secretary-General of the United Nations, headquartered in Nairobi, Kenya. Upon returning to Canada in 1998, she established an international consulting practice and became the founding President and CEO of the Nuclear Waste Management Organization. Immediately prior to her appointment as Lieutenant Governor, Ms. Dowdeswell was the President and CEO of the Council of Canadian Academies. She has also served on numerous boards of corporate and non-profit organizations.

Ms. Dowdeswell was born in Northern Ireland and immigrated to rural Saskatchewan with her parents in 1947. She earned a Bachelor of Science in home economics and teaching certificate from the University of Saskatchewan (1966) and a Master of Science in behavioural sciences from Utah State University (1972). An Officer of the Order of Canada, Ms. Dowdeswell holds 11 honorary degrees.

Areas of focus

Storytelling

Upon taking office, the Lieutenant Governor committed to listen to Ontarians. She sought to learn what themes resonate with them, what gives them pride, and what issues they find challenging. In reporting back to the people of Ontario during hundreds of engagements in all corners of the province, she noted a number of common themes: the importance of place—the physical grandeur as well as a place of opportunity, the generosity and openness of people, the amazing diversity of our communities, the ingenuity of our problem-solving, and the feeling of safety and respect for law and order. Nonetheless, they articulated challenges in a fast-paced technological and interconnected world. We remain a “work in progress”.

These stories can provide inspiration and motivation to others and yet these voices are often silent. Informally declaring herself Ontario’s “Storyteller-in-Chief”, Her Honour set out to engage Ontarians through multi-disciplinary roundtables and a varied program of community events, encouraging people to listen and learn from each other and to take part in meaningful dialogue. In doing so, Ms. Dowdeswell noted the capacity of stories to give meaning to life experiences, through which personal, family, and community identities are formed.

150 Stories

Following the success of Identity: Art Inspired by the Great Lakes, an art exhibition that ran in the Lieutenant Governor’s Suite from June 2015 to July 2016, Her Honour sought to engage Ontarians in further dialogue about their collective identity. As the 150th anniversary of Confederation drew nearer, Her Honour invited a number of Ontarians from across the province to take part in a project touching on the themes of identity and storytelling.

In February 2017, Her Honour launched 150 Stories, a collection of new stories and images that speak eloquently about what it means to be Canadian in Ontario. Taking the form of a 225-page book, an online exhibition, and an exhibition in the Lieutenant Governor's Suite, 150 Stories features written vignettes of no more than 150 words from Ontarians representing all corners of the province and many walks of life. Divided into eight chapters (A place to grow, Where we came from, Caring Canadians, Rights and freedoms, Yours to discover, Keep it beautiful, Arts and minds, Ontario in the world), the stories invite readers to contemplate the many perspectives and voices that make Ontario Ontario.

Anne Michaels, Poet Laureate of Toronto, performs a reading of her story during the launch of 150 Stories in February 2017.

150 Stories has been positively received by people in communities across the province and in the media. To date, more than 20,000 people have visited the exhibition online (available at arts.lgontario.ca/canada150) and in person. More than 35,000 books have been printed for distribution across the province. Members of the public may receive a complimentary copy of 150 Stories during a visit to the Lieutenant Governor's Suite. The project was supported in part by the Government of Ontario through its Ontario150 program, and the Government of Canada.

Other Worlds

In collaboration with OCAD University, the Lieutenant Governor launched Other Worlds in September 2016. Displayed in the Lieutenant Governor's Suite and featuring works by 19 contemporary Ontario artists affiliated with OCAD U, the exhibition affirmed the value of embracing ties with those beyond our borders while at the same time seeking to strengthen one's own community. As works examined the convergence of disparate visual worlds, viewers were likewise encouraged to engage with unfamiliar cultures, groups, and social issues. Echoing one of Her Honour's areas of focus, Other Worlds proclaimed that, in the shadow of an increasingly globalized and crowded world, there is much to gain by bringing more of Ontario to the world and by inviting more of the world to Ontario.

Supporting the written word

Reinforcing her focus on storytelling, the Lieutenant Governor attended the launch of books by several prominent Canadian authors, including Two Freedoms: Canada's Global Future by the Hon. Hugh Segal (April 2016), Seasons of Hope: Memoirs of Ontario's First Aboriginal Lieutenant Governor by the Hon. James Bartleman (April 2016), Canada Always: The Defining Speeches of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, edited by Arthur Milnes, and Kakuma Girls: Sharing Stories of Hardship, Hope and Joy from Kakuma Refugee Camp by Clare Morneau (March 2017). In October 2016, Ms. Dowdeswell addressed a gala marking the 25th anniversary of the Literary Review of Canada, emphasizing its important role in supporting literary culture in English-speaking Canada. In December, the Lieutenant Governor paid tribute to the important work of journalists by hosting a reception for representatives of the charity Journalists for Human Rights.

Sustainability

The Lieutenant Governor continued to emphasize sustainability as a priority, linking the concepts of inclusive economic prosperity, environmental stewardship, and social cohesion. Over the period of this report, Her Honour regularly paid tribute to people and organizations working to achieve the 17 United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, conducting 257 engagements broadly supporting the goals.

Inclusive economic prosperity

Ontarians and Canadians are fortunate to live in a comparatively prosperous country in which a vast majority of the population has seen rising standards of living over the past 150 years. Yet not all have benefitted from equal access to prosperity, notably Indigenous people, racialized persons, women, and people employed in some traditional economic sectors. During the past year, the Lieutenant Governor held roundtables focusing on social and economic concerns during visits to communities throughout the province. When reflecting on these discussions, Her Honour has noted two recurring questions: "Where will our future prosperity come from?" and "Are we keeping pace with the world?"

The concept of inclusive prosperity understands that resources are not always fairly distributed in today's complex and changing world, and recognizes that economic uncertainty has a social cost and that the road to prosperity may be different depending on one's lived experience, community, or region. It challenges Ontarians to consider the sources of future prosperity and the ways in which as many people as possible have a chance to meaningfully participate in economic and social spheres.

The Lieutenant Governor regularly spoke of the importance of inclusivity in considering economic issues. In April 2016, Her Honour took part in the conference Pluralism, diversity, and the future of citizenship: The economic dimension at the Balsillie School of International Affairs in Waterloo. In September 2016, Her Honour met with Christine Lagarde, Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund. In November, Her Honour addressed the Ontario Economic Summit in Niagara-on-the-Lake, encouraging delegates to consider the interconnected economic benefits of innovation and diversity. Ms. Dowdeswell reiterated the message at the annual conference of the Economic Developers Council of Ontario in February 2017. In March, she partnered with Futurpreneur Canada in hosting a roundtable on supporting youth entrepreneurship in the GTA; in attendance were representatives of the education and business sectors, startups, incubators, and youth employment agencies.

Environmental stewardship

Since the start of Ms. Dowdeswell's mandate, many Ontarians have demonstrated concern for Ontario's natural landscape, expressing a desire to do what they can in their own communities and beyond to act as stewards of the environment. Her Honour emphasized the importance of interdisciplinary and systemic approaches to addressing environmental pressures and challenges, totting the many dimensions of environmental stewardship, including climate change, air, water, land, and biodiversity quality, conservation, and innovation. She challenged Ontarians to consider the economic effects of an ailing environment and encouraged people and institutions to consider the voices of Indigenous people and other underrepresented communities when taking environmentally related decisions.

In April 2016, Her Honour recorded a video message for Lake Ontario Waterkeeper's Watermark project, a collection of Canadian water stories aiming to demonstrate why swimmable, drinkable, and fishable water matters. In October 2016, the Lieutenant Governor granted her patronage to, and hosted a reception marking the launch of, Greatness: The Great Lakes Project, an initiative aimed at publicly celebrating the majesty and meaning of the Great Lakes and ensuring that they are cherished, protected, and nurtured. The project was conceived following a series of roundtables hosted by the Lieutenant Governor and attended by leaders in Ontario's business, arts, science, media, sport, architecture, and design sectors.

In November 2016, Her Honour launched the Lieutenant Governor's Climate Change Essay Challenge in collaboration with the Centre for International Governance Innovation. This contest invited Grade 12 students from across Ontario to tell their story of how Canada will have contributed to stopping climate change by 2067. Nearly 150 submissions were considered by a judging panel comprised of journalists, teachers, and environmental research fellows, and three winners were honoured during a ceremony in the Lieutenant Governor's Suite during Earth Week 2017. Winners received a scholarship and winning essays were published by online magazine OpenCanada.

The Lieutenant Governor addressed 100th anniversary celebrations of the Georgian Bay Association in April 2016, congratulating its members and supporters for an impressive record of environmental stewardship and awareness-raising of issues facing the Great Lakes. Also in April, Her Honour delivered remarks at the Sustainable Development Technology Canada Conference in Ottawa, encouraging delegates to strengthen their commitments to ongoing dialogues on renewable energy and clean technology.

In June 2016, in partnership with the Willowbank School of Restoration Arts, Her Honour hosted a recording of “Re-Imagining Ecology”, an episode of CBC Radio’s “Ideas with Paul Kennedy”, in the Lieutenant Governor’s Suite. The episode brought together experts in urban and environmental conservation to discuss ecological approaches to preserving and restoring wilderness and cityscapes.

In June 2016, Ms. Dowdeswell introduced keynote speaker Mary Robinson, a former President of Ireland (1990–1997) and United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (1997–2002), during Climate Justice: The Way Forward Post Paris Agreement, an event hosted by the Law Society of Upper Canada held in partnership with the Centre for International Governance Innovation, the Canadian Environmental Law Association, and the Ontario Bar Association.

In September 2016, the Lieutenant Governor addressed the Clean50 Summit, hosted in Toronto by the Delta Management Group, during which she congratulated sustainability leaders and winners of the Clean50 Awards. In October 2016, the Lieutenant Governor addressed the Great Lakes Public Forum. Building on previous work on the Great lakes, Her Honour noted in her remarks the importance of the Lakes in the identity of Ontarians while emphasizing the need to balance the competing needs of commerce, industry, the environment, recreation, and culture in relation to shared waterways. Her Honour also participated in the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River Student Summit, where she encouraged young people to share their sustainability ideas with public decision makers. In November, Ms. Dowdeswell delivered a keynote address during the Pollution Probe Youth Forum, an intergenerational dialogue addressing social and technological solutions to environmental priorities identified by young people.

In November 2016, Her Honour addressed 50th anniversary celebrations of Amici Camping Charity, an organization dedicated to making camping and outdoor activities accessible to children of all backgrounds. In December, Her Honour recognized the winners of Forests Ontario’s Tree Bee and Envirothon student competitions, encouraging them and other young people to continue learning about nature and environmental stewardship. In January 2017, Her Honour met with students taking part in Aqua-Links, an Atlantic salmon conservation program offered by the Toronto Zoo.

Social cohesion

Truly successful communities are greater than the sum of their parts. In short, this is what is meant by social cohesion. How are we to be secure in our identities and at home in our communities? How do we articulate and work to achieve collective aspirations? To what extent are we able to accept diversity as a strength and work to ensure that everyone has a meaningful opportunity to contribute? Throughout many engagements, the Lieutenant Governor has encouraged Ontarians to reflect on these questions.

In August 2016, Her Honour addressed The Canada Project: Identify, Citizenship and Nationhood in a Changing World, the 85th annual summer conference of the Couchiching Institute on Public Affairs, in Orillia. In her remarks, Ms. Dowdeswell reflected on the intersection of the environment, reconciliation, and innovation in the building of just and sustainable communities.

In September 2016, Her Honour attended 6 Degrees, a global forum exploring inclusion and citizenship in the 21st century hosted by the Institute for Canadian Citizenship. Her Honour was a distinguished audience member at the 14th LaFontaine-Baldwin Lecture, delivered by author Naomi Klein. In October, Ms. Dowdeswell addressed Realizing an Inclusive Canada: 2017 and Beyond, the biennial conference of the Canadian Race Relations Foundation, during which she emphasized the connection between the underlying principle of social cohesion and Ontarians' efforts in pursuing reconciliation, welcoming refugees, and leading internationally in the promotion of human rights.

Building on earlier experiences of welcoming refugees arriving in Canada, the Lieutenant Governor sought to increase awareness of the challenges facing refugees. Throughout 2016, Her Honour hosted Clouds over Sidra, an educational arts installation that uses virtual reality to present the Zaatari refugee camp in Jordan through the eyes of Sidra, a 12-year-old girl displaced by the Syrian conflict. In all, hundreds of people viewed the installation during visits to the suite.

In April 2016, Her Honour delivered opening remarks at a Walrus Talk on spirituality. Her Honour praised the role of faith communities in fostering social cohesion during an address to the Ontario Prayer Breakfast in May. In October, the Lieutenant Governor demonstrated support for intercultural understanding by taking part in the York Regional Police's Places of Worship Tour. During visits to St Mark's Coptic Orthodox Cathedral, Jam'e Masjid Markham, and Cham Shan Temple, Her Honour learned about local efforts to maintain positive relationships between minority communities and the police.

In November 2016, the Lieutenant Governor addressed the annual Cathay Ball of the Mon Sheong Foundation, noting the organization's efforts to advance social cohesion through the building of intergenerational ties in Chinese-Canadian communities in Ontario.

In September, Her Honour addressed a gathering in Vaughan in support of Caritas School of Life, a provider of addiction recovery and mental health programs and therapeutic community. In her remarks, Ms. Dowdeswell commended the organization for its efforts to eradicate stigma surrounding mental illness. Also in September, Her Honour conducted a tour of Yorktown Family Services and met with shelter users. In December, she met with staff and volunteered at a lunch service during a visit to the Scott Mission in Toronto.

In November 2016, Her Honour showed support for supporters of public art by attending the Mayor's Evening for the Arts in aid of the Toronto Arts Foundation. Also in November, Her Honour paid tribute to the intersection of arts and philanthropy by attending the 38th annual Business for the Arts award gala.

In October 2016, the Lieutenant Governor visited the Cham Shan Temple in Markham.

Ontario in the world

Since taking office, the Lieutenant Governor has challenged Ontarians to dare to think deeply about their role not only as residents of a province within Canada, but also as global citizens. Recalling that the world is more complex and interconnected than ever, Her Honour emphasized that Ontarians have much to contribute to the world, yet also much to gain. To this end, Ms. Dowdeswell regularly attended events paying tribute to Ontarians fostering international dialogue and action.

As a former Executive Director of the United Nations Environment Programme, Her Honour has highlighted the many connections that Ontarians have with the UN, and regularly engaged with people and organizations contributing to the adoption and attainment of the UN's Sustainable Development Goals. Ms. Dowdeswell frequently conducted engagements in partnership with the United Nations Association in Canada.

In June 2016, the Lieutenant Governor addressed Ontarians & The World: Universality Matters, a conference held by the Ontario Council for International Cooperation. In September, Her Honour met with entrepreneurs and business leaders during the Toronto Global Forum at a reception hosted by Export Development Canada. In November, Ms. Dowdeswell highlighted the ongoing leadership of Ontarians and Canadians in promoting human rights in an address to delegates of Protection in times of conflict: Health, displacement and humanitarian principles, a conference on international humanitarian law hosted at York University's Glendon campus by the Canadian Red Cross.

The Lieutenant Governor addressed the annual holiday luncheon of the Consular Corps Association of Toronto in December 2016. In her remarks, Ms. Dowdeswell commended the work of consular representatives in building bridges between longtime Canadians, new Canadians, and members of diasporic communities in Ontario. Her Honour also highlighted the importance of subnational ties in promoting technological innovation.

The Lieutenant Governor also recognizes the importance of scientific exploration and the encouragement of innovation, frequently noting that societies are most successful in addressing shared challenges when they are able to combine conventional wisdom with new modes of thinking. Her Honour regularly took part in events supporting Ontario's leading role in promoting knowledge-based economies. At the Governor General's invitation, the Lieutenant Governor was a regular contributor to Enhancing Global Recognition for Canadian Research Excellence, an initiative aimed at boosting Canada's research profile on the global stage.

In October 2016, Her Honour paid tribute to Canadian biomedical scientists during the annual presentation of the Canada Gairdner International Awards. In November, she toured the newly opened Harriet Brooks Building in Chalk River, where she met with atomic scientists and administrators and learned about Ontario's leadership in nuclear research.

Working visit to Utah

In November 2016, the Lieutenant Governor conducted a working visit to Utah, conducting 13

engagements over two days. Invited by her alma mater, Utah State University, Her Honour met with faculty and students at the university's Logan campus, and delivered an address at a speaking series hosted by the university's Institute of Government and Politics. Ms. Dowdeswell took note of ongoing advances in psychological, medical, and environmental research during visits to laboratories at the university's College of Education, the Utah Climate Centre, and the USU Spider Silk Lab.

While in Utah, Her Honour highlighted subnational ties between Ontario and Utah during a visit to Salt Lake City, where she held meetings with Governor Gary Herbert, Canada's honorary consul in Utah, business leaders with connections to Ontario, and entrepreneurs seeking to expand operations within Ontario. Her Honour hosted a dinner for women leaders in the public, private, and nonprofit sectors in partnership with the Salt Lake City-based Women's Leadership Institute. Constitutional role

Representing the Crown

Canada is a constitutional monarchy with The Queen as Sovereign and head of state. In Ontario, the Lieutenant Governor is The Queen's representative while the Premier is the head of government. In Canada's system of parliamentary democracy, the head of state (commonly called the Crown) holds supreme power on behalf of the people and lends it to be exercised by the government of the day.

The Lieutenant Governor opens the second session of the 41st Parliament of Ontario by reading the Speech from the Throne in September 2016.

Responsible government

The foundation of Ontario's democracy is "responsible government", which simply means that:

- The Crown acts upon formal advice
- The Executive (government) is responsible to the Legislature for its advice

The government (Premier and Cabinet ministers) is formally appointed by the Lieutenant Governor and advises on the use of the Crown's authority according to law and is accountable to the elected Legislative Assembly for its decisions and actions while in office.

Provided the government enjoys the "confidence" of the Legislative Assembly, its advice is invariably accepted and legitimized by the Crown. If the government loses a confidence question raised in the Legislative Assembly, then it must either resign, making way for a new government to be appointed, or submit to the will of citizens in a general election.

The Lieutenant Governor holds regular meetings with the Premier, during which she has the right to be consulted, to encourage, and to warn on government matters. If either the Lieutenant Governor or the Premier is not available to meet, they may speak by phone. These meetings, as with all communications between the Lieutenant Governor and the government, remain confidential.

Powers and responsibilities

In Ontario, the Lieutenant Governor exercises the powers of the Crown, which derive from the written constitution, constitutional convention (political rules of the constitution), and statute law. These powers are similar to those of The Queen and Governor General with regard to Parliament and the federal government.

The Lieutenant Governor:

- Ensures that Ontario always has a Premier who commands the confidence of the Legislative Assembly
- Appoints members of the Executive Council (Cabinet ministers) on the advice of the Premier
- Summons, prorogues, and dissolves the Legislature on the advice of the Premier
- Reads the Speech from the Throne at the beginning of a parliamentary session
- Grants Royal Assent, the final step of the legislative process, to bills passed by the Legislative Assembly
- Orders elections to the Legislative Assembly on the advice of Cabinet, in accordance with the Election Act
- Approves government business such as regulations and public appointments by signing Orders-in-Council on the advice of Cabinet

The Lieutenant Governor remains strictly nonpartisan in carrying out her constitutional duties. In doing so, the Lieutenant Governor ensures that the democratic will of Ontarians and their elected representatives is upheld and that the constitutional conventions of responsible government are respected.

In numbers

On September 12, 2016, the Lieutenant Governor delivered the Speech from the Throne beginning the second session of the 41st Parliament of Ontario.

The Lieutenant Governor regularly reviews and signs papers formally approving government decisions. From April 1, 2016, to March 31, 2017:

- 45 bills received Royal Assent
- 2 by-elections were authorized
- 1,604 Orders-in-Council (including 346 regulations) were signed into effect
- 378 letters patent were signed under the Public Lands Act and the Mining Act

Administrator

If the Lieutenant Governor is temporarily absent, ill, or unable to perform constitutional duties, the Administrator of the Government of Ontario may fulfil the functions of the Lieutenant Governor.

The Chief Justice of Ontario holds a standing appointment as Administrator of the Government. If the Chief Justice is not available, another judge from the courts of Ontario is temporarily appointed by the Governor General-in-Council to act as Administrator.

Bringing people together

Indigenous peoples

In furtherance of the Crown's unique relationship with Indigenous peoples, the Lieutenant Governor regularly interacted with representatives of Indigenous communities, ensured Indigenous representation at events wherever possible, and took efforts to create opportunities for Indigenous and non-Indigenous people to come together in dialogue. In particular, Her Honour emphasized the importance of witnessing significant ceremonies and events when visiting First Nations and Métis communities.

In May 2016, on the occasion of the Government of Ontario's Statement of Commitment to Reconciliation with Indigenous peoples before the Legislative Assembly, the Lieutenant Governor hosted a lunch for leaders of First Nations, Métis, and Inuit communities in Ontario, Indigenous elders, and survivors of the residential school system. At the time, Her Honour stated: "Let me say that, without hesitation, and within the bounds of my constitutional responsibilities, I intend to do all that I can to encourage a culture of reconciliation in Ontario."

In October 2016, Her Honour delivered the inaugural keynote address of "What is reconciliation?", a lecture series presented by the Friends and Neighbours Group, a Brantford community committee, in partnership with Wilfrid Laurier University. In her remarks, during which she emphasized the importance of relationship building and storytelling to reconciliation. In February 2017, Ms. Dowdeswell delivered a keynote address on reconciliation during a visit to the Bora Laskin Faculty of Law at Lakehead University in Thunder Bay. In her remarks, she explored the relationship between the Crown, treaties, relationship-building, and reconciliation.

In November 2016, the Lieutenant Governor hosted a reception for delegates of the Chiefs of Ontario's Leaders in the Legislature event, a series of discussions between First Nations chiefs and ministers of the Crown in Ontario. In February 2017, Her Honour addressed the Indigenous Women's Leadership Forum, hosted by the Ontario Native Women's Association, during which she accepted the honour of

Also in March, she recognized provincial finalists in Imagine a Canada, a competition conducted in partnership with the Governor General in which young people are invited to share their vision of Canada through the lens of reconciliation.

National Aboriginal Day 2016

To mark the 20th anniversary of National Aboriginal Day in June 2016, at the invitation of the Six Nations of the Grand River Territory, Her Honour hosted a series of events at the Woodland Cultural Centre in Brantford, site of the Mohawk Institute, one of only two former residential schools remaining in Ontario. In the presence of the Governor General, and in partnership with The Prince's Charities Canada and Historica Canada, Her Honour welcomed national representatives of the corporate, philanthropic, educational, religious, cultural, media, and public service sectors to engage in dialogue and develop partnerships in pursuit of reconciliation.

Participants had the opportunity to take guided tours of the residential school building while meeting with survivors. Historica Canada premiered a Heritage Minute telling the story of Chanie "Charlie" Wenjack, whose death in 1966 prompted the first inquiry into the conditions faced by residential school students.

Summer reading camps

Her Honour continues to support the renamed Lieutenant Governor's Indigenous Summer Reading Camps. Administered by Frontier College, the camps are an opportunity for youth in remote Indigenous communities to improve their literacy skills in a fun, engaging, and activity-oriented setting. In August 2016, Her Honour visited a reading camp in Cat Lake First Nation. In 2016, more than 7,500 students attended 141 camps in 127 communities across Canada.

Community visits

In May 2016, the Lieutenant Governor conducted an official visit to the traditional territory of the Mohawks of Akwesasne. During the visit, Her Honour was greeted by community members during an edge of the woods ceremony, met with elders and leaders during a lunch hosted by the Mohawk Council of Akwesasne, and toured the local administration.

Office operations

*Her Honour greets guests
during the 2017 Lieutenant Governor's New Year's Levee.*

The Lieutenant Governor's Suite

After the closure of Chorley Park 1937, Lieutenant Governors of Ontario have operated out of offices and state rooms in the northwest wing of the Legislative Building at Queen's Park, located in downtown Toronto. The Lieutenant Governor's Suite is a working office and also serves as the setting for official functions and hospitality.

Tours

The Lieutenant Governor's Suite was regularly opened to visitors as part of tours of the Legislative Building at Queen's Park. Members of the public were welcomed during Doors Open Toronto in May 2016. In addition to learning about the office's history, viewers were able to view the changing art exhibitions. It is estimated that 10,544 persons visited the suite on tours or during official functions.

New Year's Levee

Ms. Dowdeswell welcomed members of the public to the Lieutenant Governor's Suite on January 1, 2017, during the annual New Year's Levee. A longstanding tradition, the levee is a unique opportunity for the public to meet the Lieutenant Governor, learn about her role and responsibilities, and enjoy local entertainment. This year, representatives of federal signature initiatives were invited to involve visitors in plans to celebrate 150 years of Confederation.

Communications

Engaging Ontarians online

The Lieutenant Governor maintains an active social media presence, regularly documenting her activity program. The office operates official accounts on Facebook, Flickr, Instagram, Scribd, Twitter, and YouTube.

Public explanation of Her Honour's responsibilities continues to form an important part of the office's online outreach. To this end, the Lieutenant Governor's website is routinely updated to include current and accessible information relating to the Her Honour's role.

As an occasional blogger for The Huffington Post Canada, Her Honour is able to share her message with a greater audience. In 2016, she published blog posts offering reflections on the 99th anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge, Canadian athletes' achievements during the Olympics and Paralympics in Rio de Janeiro, and the approaching 150th anniversary of Confederation.

Correspondence

The Lieutenant Governor showed her support for charities and community organizations celebrating significant anniversaries, hosting conferences and galas, and organizing cultural and sporting events by sending 118 signed messages of congratulations.

The Lieutenant Governor sent 5,112 signed congratulatory greetings to Ontarians celebrating birthdays (90 years and over) and wedding anniversaries (50 years and over).

Serving the Lieutenant Governor

Led by Chief of Staff Anthony Hylton, the Office of the Lieutenant Governor comprises a team of 11 staff members.

In addition, a corps of more than 50 aides-de-camp and volunteers serve the Lieutenant Governor by contributing thousands of hours of service each year. Aides-de-camp are current or retired uniformed service members who accompany and assist Her Honour during events. The position of aide-de-camp is honorary and those appointed serve at pleasure. In Ontario, aides-de-camp are selected from the three branches of the Canadian Armed Forces, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Ontario Provincial Police, regional and municipal police services, St John Ambulance, and local emergency services and first responders.
